

New clinic opens in Peterborough

An independent, consultant-led private group practice featuring a range of specialties opens this Autumn in Peterborough.

The Avicenna Clinic was founded after specialists identified an opportunity in the local Cambridgeshire market to offer patients a consultant-led imaging and minimally invasive surgery facility.

A multispecialty business model with a focus on day surgery procedures was chosen.

The right building was found in the city centre offering good transport links from and to the rest of the UK and making the clinic easily accessible for patients.

Radiologist Dr Elmadbouh said: 'Avicenna Clinic will be a centre of excellence, specialising in minimally invasive surgery, imaging and image-guided intervention techniques.

'Being the first clinic in the region to have an open MRI scanner is just one example of the way we will be using the latest technology to provide the highest level of patient care here at the clinic.'

The North Street clinic is located in a period building, recently renovated to accommodate a medical practice over three floors. There are X-ray and ultrasound suites, consulting rooms and relaxing patient spaces with easy access.
